THIS BOOK IS FULL OF FACTS WHICH WILL LOSE YOU WEIGHT.In this seminar we will examine literature on the experiences of 5 people as they try to maintain a healthy lifestyle in spite of a very busy work schedule, in particular in the UK. We will consider how the busyness of their lives makes this harder, how the duties of a worker's role in turn limit their ability to take action, and how healthcare professionals are often unable to give practical advice. And we will consider the differing life contexts of the different people we will hear about. We will be looking at the experiences of the people we meet in order to contribute to the understanding of how practitioners and professionals might communicate better with patients, particularly if we want people to stick to a diet and activity plan. In this seminar we will hear from authors and professionals who have tried to deal with lifestyle choices, from Charles Dickens's readings of the trials and tribulations of the working classes to Stephen Fry's self-help guide for reading, and from Michael Vickery's call to abandon the diet culture of the age.
